Class Secretary.

JAMES HARDY ROPES.

To the Class of Eighty-nine:

The Secretary presents herewith his Fifth Report.

The usual Financial Statement is not included, as the Treasurer intends to send out to the Class in July a comprehensive statement including an account of the contributions and expenditures for the Fifteenth Anniversary celebration.

Additional information concerning twenty members of the Class from whom late reports were received will be found in the Appendix on pp. 85–91, to which special attention is called.

From the list of Special Students associated with the Class the name of N. Crane has been dropped at his own request, since his affiliations are with the Class of '91, of which he became a member. The names of C. Foss, T. B. Hurley, A. C. Robinson, W. E. Stauffer, E. Wright, have also been dropped from the list. They were never actually registered in the Class, and the first two have never been heard from, while the last three have given no sign of life since 1890.

The addresses of the following members of the Class are unknown or very doubtful, and the Secretary would be grateful for any information about the men:

Oscar M. Anderson,
Henry L. Bailey,
George T. Burrows,
Charles D. Gibbons,
Frank P. Sheldon,
Randolph C. Surbridge,

---

Horatio J. Green.
Willard R. Kimball,
William V. Martin,
William S. Scott.

There have died since the last Report

1901. Lewis Henry Morgan,
Redfield Turnure,
1902. James Brown Markoe,
1903. Thomas Cyprian Frenyear,
1904. Burt McVay Allison,

RECORD OF THE CLASS.

1901 – 1904.

---

SUMNER RANKIN ALBEE.

Born at Cambridge, Mass., April 24, 1867.
Died at Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 21, 1892.
[See Secretary's Report No. III, 1898, p. 11.]

Born at Fredericktown, Ohio, Oct. 7, 1864.
Died at Chicago, Ill., Jan. 25, 1904.

Allison was born of Scotch-Irish parents at Fredericktown, Ohio, October 7, 1864. After spending two years at the Ohio Wesleyan College at Delaware, he entered Harvard in the class of '89 at the junior year. On October 12th, 1892, he was married at Louisville, Kentucky, to Mary Young (Wellesley, '90) who survives him.

Immediately after graduation Allison entered the service of The Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation of London, at its main American office in Boston, as a clerk. So rapid was his progress that in the spring of 1890 he was sent to Birmingham, Alabama, to represent the Company there. In November, 1894, he came to Cincinnati as the General Agent for Southern Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee. During this period and up to the date of his death, Allison rose high in the councils of the Company, not only as a business agent, but as an expert in liability insurance.

In many ways Burt Allison was a remarkable man. Of the highest integrity and pure-mindedness, he made his way to the top in a business where competition is keen, and against an opposition of not always scrupulous nature. Though broad and generous in his ideals and in his friendships, he had a deep religious sense of honor, never tolerating shams or doubtful concessions to policy. He was a Harvard man par excellence, as well in his devotion in spirit and act to the motto "Veritas" and all that it implies, as in his loyalty to the College itself. Ever ready to help or encourage one weaker than himself, for the last few years he has struggled against ill-health and other obstacles with a single-mindedness that compelled notice and admiration from all who knew him. His devotion to his wife was beautiful; though not blest with children, their home has ever been bright and cheerful for their friends — and there were hosts of them.

Allison, while in college, was an active member of Pi Eta. He was also a Phi Kappa Psi man, entering while at Delaware.

ANDREW FULLER CRAVEN.

Born in Franklin County, Indiana, March 13, 1840.

Died at New York, N. Y., March 4, 1904.

Craven was the oldest in years of all the members of our Class. Born in Indiana in 1840, he served in the Civil War, and afterward studied law at the old University of Chicago, where he received the degree of LL. B. in 1870. He was married in Iowa and had one daughter, and he and his wife were both engaged in school work in Colorado and California. In 1887 he came to Harvard from Oakland, California, and entered as a special student; having been admitted to the senior class in 1888 he took his degree in 1889. The next year he spent in the Divinity School; the following three years, 1890–93, in studying history and economics at Johns Hopkins, and in teaching in private schools in Baltimore. In 1893 Craven received the degree of Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins, and entered on his work as assistant professor and later as professor of economics at Columbian University, Washington, D. C. To this position was added in 1899 the professorship of political science. Craven resigned his professorship about 1902, and went to live in New York, where he died, of pneumonia, March 4, 1904.

This is the simple record of the external history of a quiet, serious man. Behind these few sober facts lies a sadder story.

EDWARD WELLES HAWLEY.

"During all the time since Jan. 1, 1901, as well as for many years before that date, my residence has been in Minneapolis and practically at the same spot as at present, and my occupation since 1893 has been that of a lawyer, and since 1896 as a member of the firm of E. W. & G. M. B. Hawley, my partner being my brother.

"I have been secretary of an organization known as the Minneapolis Charter Union, which has done good work in securing legislation such as would aid us in our next attempt to obtain an up-to-date charter for our city, and in procuring the appointment of the Charter Commission which framed the charter soon to be voted on by the citizens of Minneapolis.

"Regarding 'other circumstances or experiences which would interest the class,' I have little to relate; but it may be of some small interest to state that my brother and I, after devoting a large part of our time for some six years to its preparation, were completely successful in a suit brought in the United States courts to recover over 4000 acres of land in the heart of the oil regions of Texas, though it was necessary for us to prove that a deed executed nearly sixty years before, and no longer in existence so far as could be discovered, was a forgery. No small part of the satisfaction derived from this work came from carrying it through in spite of frequent warnings from all our friends, and even from most of those for whom we were fighting the suit, that it was the most hopeless kind of a 'wild goose chase.' The history of the case reads like fiction, and some of the original correspondence used in evidence dates back as far as 1835 when Texas was still a part of 'Old Mexico.'"

ALEXANDER HOLMES.

JAMES EDWARD HOMANS.

Editor and compiler, Flushing, N. Y.

"My literary output has been vast, and I have now something like 300 pounds of MSS. stored on my shelves. In the meantime I have published a work of 620 pages, 466 illustrations, on automobiles, entitled 'Self-Propelled Vehicles' (New York, 1902). I have just about completed a new edition up to date. This book has been widely advertised as the 'chauffeur's vade mecum,' etc., etc., and several pretty things have been said in the papers. I have also brought out a new edition of my popular work on the telephone.

"Galumphing over into quite a different field, I wrote a book of 144 pages, no illustrations, upon the ever popular subject of divorce. I adopted a nom-de-plume in this instance, and shall not acknowledge the book until it is an assured success. It should be in every home (75 cents).

"To sum up the remainder of my activities, I can do no better than to quote an alleged humorous doggerel from 'President' Hearst's New York daily:

> 'I 'd like to be a hansom cab,
> But since the style I lack,
> I have to be content to stay
> A literary hack.'

"Last year I wrote, revised, edited and compiled one of those handy, know-it-all, self-educating, handbooks or cyclopedias, 2 vols., 8vo, 1,000 pp., 800,000 words, including nearly as many different subjects, all the way from French, German and Spanish, piano, violin, mandolin, guitar, cornet and singing self-taught, through steam, gas and electric motors, to a cookbook and a treatise on etiquette. There was also a chapter on wireless telegraphy and another on 'first aid to the injured.' It will soon appear. This spring I rustled a dictionary up to date, with 5,000 new selected words, compiled two extensive indexes, and wrote a treatise on 'electric bells' for the use of janitors and other perverts.

"I am at present 'resting on my laurels'—if I may be allowed the use of a very bold metaphor,—am reading multitudinous proof, and seriously contemplating the concoction of a book on human life in general.

"In my haste I forgot to mention that, in May, 1901, I contributed two lengthy articles on 'Elect Infants' and 'Non-elect Infants' to the New York Sun; wrote a small book last year on 'Present-Day Electrical Activities,' which is not yet published, although already in print; and brought a history of the U. S. Marine Corps up to date."

LOUIS LEVERETT HOOPER.

"Since January 1, 1901, I have done nothing worthy of mention for the Class Report; I have not even married. I have joined the Cosmos Club, and am also a charter member of the new University Club which we hope soon to open in Washington. In the faculty of The Washington School for Boys, of which I have been Head Master since it opened in 1900, I am glad to say we have two loyal Harvard men, Gale '88 and Van Law '02."

GURDON SALTONSTALL HOWE.

Practicing law, with the Boston Elevated Railway Company, 101 Milk Street, Boston.

MORTON DENISON HULL.

Lawyer, Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.

"I have eschewed politics until about a year and a half ago; since which time I have found myself continuously mixed up in the scrap which is always going on in my home ward and precinct. My most recent experience has been as a delegate to the Republican State Convention at Springfield. If you are a reader of the daily papers, you will see that it has been a continuous vaudeville for about ten days without nominating anyone for governor.

"While I like my own fireside the best of any, my check book shows that I am paying dues to the University Club, the Harvard Club, Midlothian Club, Chicago Literary Club, the Law Club, the Legal Club and the City Club."

Is member of the Council of the National Conference of Unitarian Churches.

LINCOLN HULLEY.

July 1, 1902, entered employ of Board of Education of New York City (civil service position). Aug. 1, 1903, left this for the post of civil service examiner, New York Municipal Civil Service Commission, where he is still engaged (protected by civil service laws). In 1902 received the degree from New York University of B. C. S. (bachelor of commercial science) on a professional two years' course in accountancy.

"My experience, as obtained in confidential positions in the New York Board of Education and the Municipal Civil Service Commission, has enabled me to see and know intimately the workings of this city's educational system, and to appreciate its results, through the opportunity that has come to me of examining the papers of thousands of candidates, most of whom, especially the younger ones, are graduates of our city public schools. As a result of this experience, I am convinced that whatever our schools may teach at present, they do not properly or adequately teach reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, grammar or composition. I believe this dire failure to be due to the fact that an attempt is made to teach too many 'fads.' I am confirmed in this view by the reports my son, now attending one of the best of our public schools, brings home to me. It is the same school I myself attended when a boy. The difference is painful."

"Since my last report nothing of great moment has happened to me. My office, factory, warehouse, in fact everything I had with the exception of a few important books were destroyed in the great fire of February 7–8–9th, which destroyed so much of the business section of Baltimore. While well insured, it will take months, if not years, to replace the records, etc., destroyed. When we opened our two large so called fire-proof safes after the fire we found nothing in them excepting a few charred and blackened papers, which crumbled to ashes when exposed to the air."

CLINTON TYLER BRAINARD.

"I had studied law some time before I entered the class of '90. After graduating I went immediately to Omaha, and was admitted to the practice of law in July, 1891, entering the offices of Gen. J. C. Cowen, who is perhaps as well known a lawyer as there is in the State of Nebraska. I remained there a short time and went to Creede, Colorado,— at that time the largest silver mining town in the West,— where I practiced law until the fall of '93, when the town went to pieces on account of the panic and the drop in silver. Then I moved to Cripple Creek, Colorado, where I practiced law for a few years, until the mines in the district were closed for over a year on account of the big strike in the miners' union. I decided then to go to New York to see if something besides ill luck would follow me. I came to New York with the express purpose of practicing law. While familiarizing myself with the codes and statutes, through some friends of mine I became interested in the publishing business and newspaper work. Since then I have been associated with the 'New York World,' 'New York Times,' 'New York Mail and Express,' Peale & Hill, and Merrill & Baker (a corporation of publishers), and about two years ago started a publishing concern under the name of C. T. Brainard & Co., of which I am the president. We make a specialty of publishing high grade and fine editions of standard authors. As to my domestic life, I was married seven years ago last December to Miss Lucille Heloise Huyck of Denver, Col. We have no children. We are living at Hotel Belleclaire, 77th St. and the Boulevard."

THOMAS CYPRIAN FRENYEAR.

Born at Middletown, Vt., March 16, 1865.
Died at Fort William, Canada, Dec. 10, 1903.

Mr. Frenyear was born March 16, 1865, at Middletown Spa, Vermont, his father, the Rev. C. P. Frenyear, being a minister of the Baptist Church. From an early age Mr. Frenyear displayed unusual mental ability, although he did not go to school until the age of ten, receiving his instruction at home from his mother until that time. When the family moved to Townsend, Vermont, he entered Leland and Gray Seminary, where he was in classes with boys of sixteen and eighteen years of age, with whom he more than held his own, thus showing remarkable mental development in one so young. His schooling continued until he was about fifteen, when he entered the office of an uncle, Mr. W. R. Nutting, Manager of the Boston Electric Company. Although starting thus early in a business career, he did not give up his school work, but entered the Boston Latin School, where he maintained his class standing by devoting all his spare time to study. From the Boston Latin School he went to Phillips Exeter Academy, where he graduated in 1885. As showing his grit and determination, it may be mentioned that he supported himself while at Exeter by keeping a bookstore for the students.

Shortly before leaving the Academy he took an examination for Harvard, which he passed with credit, and he entered the University in the autumn of 1885. At this time he was engaged in business with two of his classmates, with an office in Boston. He found, however, that it was impracticable for him to continue at Harvard because he could not spare the time to go back and forth from his office to recitations.

Probably on account of his touch with electrical affairs through the work in his uncle's office (already mentioned), he went into the electrical industry and for a time was a salesman for the Thomson-Houston Company and the Brush Electric Company, with headquarters at Buffalo. He left that company to become superintendent of the Cayadutta Electric Railway, which position he held from 1892 to 1895. In the fall of 1895 he entered the employ of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

In 1897 he was made manager of the Buffalo office of the Westinghouse Company, where he displayed marked ability and built up a large business. The location of his office and inclusion of a large amount of Canadian territory within its district gave him a large experience in Canadian business, so that he was well equipped on the formation of the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Limited, to take the position of sales-manager, to which he was promoted. He entered upon this work with enthusiasm, and had the affairs of his office splendidly organized when he was stricken down with typhoid fever, from which he died, after lingering a few weeks, at Fort William, where he had gone on business. His whole career had shown him to be a man of great ability and strong character, and there can be no doubt that a most promising career was cut short by his untimely death.

The religious side of Mr. Frenyear's character was strongly developed, and while he never forced his views upon his associates, they all knew his convictions and respected them. He joined the church at the early age of eleven years, and was always an active member. While in Buffalo he was a deacon and trustee of the Delaware Avenue Baptist Church, and was at one time superintendent of its Sunday School. He was also a very active worker in the Young Men's Christian Association.

Mr. Frenyear was a man of culture and very fond of the standard classical authors. A lecture which he delivered less than a year ago before the Electric Club at Wilkinsburg, Pa., is notable for its literary excellence and the wide acquaintance with the great writers which it shows.

In June, 1893, he married Miss Emma L. Chase of Exeter, N. H., the daughter of a Baptist clergyman, who now survives him with three young children, one of whom is only a few months old.

Mr. Frenyear was a man of very agreeable personality, although quiet and undemonstrative; but as one became acquainted with him his sterling qualities were more fully appreciated, so that acquaintanceship ripened into sincere regard. His death came as a shock to all his friends, who had rejoiced in the wider field opened to him by his new position, and were counting on an increased reputation for him. As a mark of the high regard in which he was held by the Westinghouse Electric Company, the senior vice-president, Mr. Frank H. Taylor, issued a circular letter, appreciative of his ability and zeal, and expressing the sorrow felt at his death and the deep sympathy of everybody for his family.

Died at Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29, 1902.

James Brown Markoe died in Philadelphia, Nov. 29, 1902, in consequence of injuries received in trying to stop the frightened horses of the carriage in which he and three friends were driving. The attempt, which resulted in his death, probably saved the lives of his companions. He was born in Philadelphia, May 12, 1865, was prepared for college in Philadelphia and Cambridge, and entered as a special student with the Class of '89. He continued with the Class for three years, and took a prominent part in athletic and social life. He played on the '89 Freshman eleven and cricket team, and rowed on the '89 and University crews. He was a member of the Δ. K. E., Institute of 1770, Hasty Pudding, Z. Ψ., and Porcellian Clubs. After leaving college he travelled extensively abroad, and on his return entered the Philadelphia office of Brown Brothers & Co., bankers, a firm which his grandfather had founded and of which he soon became a member. From 1897 to 1899 he lived in New York. He was extremely well known both in New York and Philadelphia, and greatly beloved by the large circle of friends whom his genial spirit and upright and sincere character had won.

FRANK LINCOLN OLMSTED.

"I am still in the same position and in the same line of teaching [in the private classes of Mr. J. A. Browning, New York] as I was at the time of the last Report. Since then I have joined the Harvard Club of New York, and in the Literature Series of which I am editor have issued 'The Fur Traders of the Columbia River and the Rocky Mountains.'

"I wrote for the November, 1903, number of 'Country Life in America' a short article on 'A Country Home,' giving my summer experiences in rehabilitating an interesting old country place near Lakewood, which has this further interest, that with extensive additions it will form the center for a small school that I shall open there in October of this year.

"I spent last summer in England, devoting my sight-seeing to places of literary interest, but chiefly to a careful study of Oxford and to the public schools at Eton, Rugby, and Harrow, and the novel experiment of the New School at Abbotsholme. In fact, this last-mentioned school furnished me many ideas and a deal of inspiration for my own efforts.

"I think there is nothing else of interest, unless perhaps the fact that I have in press, for the Unit Series, a new edition of Hamerton's 'Intellectual Life,' for which I have provided a life and notes, and some other matter of interest.

"My address will be hereafter, 'Pine Lodge,' Lakewood, New Jersey."

"A publisher has dared to hunt me up and asked to print me in book form. I am keeping up my music and my official connection with the Boston Singing Club, doing critical and creative writing, lecturing, and private teaching.

"I am trying to open eyes by 'Clues to Principles of Art' [the title of several series of morning art classes at the Boston Public Library, the Boston Art Museum, and the Germanic Museum, Cambridge, conducted by Phelps] to the fundamental unity underlying all forms of art expression, landscape, architecture, sculpture, painting, music, literature, acting, etc., in order to substitute personal acquaintance with concrete objects for unintelligent indifference, and actual knowledge of each for its own sake for vague theories and general information (archaeologic, historic, or of any other interesting and quite legitimate kind); and to spread exact appreciation both of his point of view and of the kind and quality of brain power possessed by the creative artist."

MOSES IBN-FARAJ REUBEN.

Lawyer, 28 School Street, Boston.

Married, Jan. 8, 1903, to Ida Shoolman, daughter of Joseph Shoolman of Boston.

A son, Isaac Reuben, was born Oct. 19, 1903.

"Since January, 1903, have been a member of the Republican State Central Committee; have been a member of the Republican City Committee and of other committees. An effort is made to use me as a candidate this fall for Congress. The district has been helplessly democratic. Two years ago an opportunity existed to elect a republican candidate, but it was lost."

In answer to the question about politics, Reuben writes: "Have exerted my influence quietly and without display. I have come to the conclusion that Boston is not a city in which reform will be sincerely entertained or advanced; those in power will not advocate reform; those not in power desire it but are intimidated, and do not understand means and measures; and the rest of the people use it as a fad; hence we have acquired the injurious habit of condoning wrong. My conclusion is the result of observation and not disappointment."

LUCIEN HUGH ALEXANDER.

"I do wish I could make every Harvard man understand how kindly the feeling at Pennsylvania is, and for years has been, toward Harvard. I speak mainly from an athletic standpoint, and feel I have a right to do so, as I was 'in the long ago' captain of both the University of Pennsylvania crew and football team. As I also had the pleasure in a small way, to the best of my ability, of helping Harvard defeat Princeton 12 to 0 in that memorable game in the fall of '87, entitling me to the somewhat unique position of being the only man who has played on both the Harvard and Pennsylvania elevens, and also one year refereed the Harvard-Penn game, I may be pardoned for vigorously expressing the sincere hope that the athletic relations between these two great institutions will, as the years go on, become closer and closer. Their aims and policies are, or ought to be, the same, being universities in the broad sense both located on the outskirts of great typical American cities. Surely Princeton, not being a university in the broad acceptance of the term, cannot in all branches of sport be as worthy of Harvard's steel as Pennsylvania, and Harvard should undoubtedly have close affiliation in every branch of sport with at least one great institution other than Yale. I earnestly hope it will be Pennsylvania, and would like to have a part in cementing the ties closer than they now are.

"There is not much in the daily routine of my life which will interest the boys. Before settling down to the practice of the law, which really is a most jealous mistress, I knocked around the world a bit, taking a couple of trips abroad and traveling somewhat extensively on the continent. I also spent a winter in Minnesota and considerable time in the Far West. I have also traveled through the South several times, been in Alaska, and done the Yellowstone Park in routine fashion. Last summer I camped in the Rockies several weeks, getting back on horseback over the trails more than one hundred miles from any railway, and crossed the Colorado-Utah border in the wildest part of the country I have ever been in; the open season for killing men down there seems to be every month of the year, yet I was not perforated with any bullets and am hale and hearty and weigh about fifty pounds more than when in college.

"I have written a bit now and then, but generally upon professional subjects. For several years, under appointment of the courts, I served as a member and secretary of the examining board on admissions to the Philadelphia Bar (no salary; you take your pay in the honor of the office and reap a reward in the hard work). The only act I presume of any great importance which I have done of lasting advantage to the community was to propose a memorial by the Bar of Pennsylvania to the Supreme Court — our highest appellate court — to the end that the system of admissions to the Bar in our Commonwealth might be unified and put upon a substantial basis and higher plane. This suggestion was adopted and a committee appointed, of which I was a member and the secretary, to press the matter. After a couple of years of persistent activity we succeeded in stirring up the sentiment of the profession throughout the State to the crucial point, and finally secured the appointment of a State Board of Law Examiners by our highest appellate court, and this has resulted in revolutionizing the Pennsylvania system for admission to the Bar. I am practising law individually at 713–714 Arcade Building, Philadelphia, and will be glad to see any of the old class when in town. My home is in the suburbs; address, Highland Avenue, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

"I am a member of the Penn and University Clubs of Philadelphia, Philadelphia Cricket Club, Law Association of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Bar Association, American Bar Association, the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Republican Clubs, the Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania, Public Education Association, American Academy of Political and Social Science, etc., etc."
